Alito: No Right to Abortion

Reagan-era papers reveal Supreme Court nominee's views

WASHINGTON | Supreme Court nominee Samuel Alito boasted about his work arguing that "the Constitution does not protect a right to an abortion" while trying to become a deputy assistant attorney general in the Reagan administration, according to documents released Monday. Alito, a federal appellate judge nominated by President Bush to the nation's highest court, was a young lawyer working for the solicitor general's office in 1985 when he applied for the position under Attorney General Edwin Meese.

As part of his application, Alito sent a document saying his work in the solicitor general's office had included helping "to advance legal positions in which I personally believe very strongly." "I am particularly proud of my contributions in recent cases in which the government argued that racial and ethnic quotas should not be allowed and that the Constitution does not protect a right to an abortion," he wrote. That sentence provides one of the first clear-cut statements attributed to Alito about abortion, which will be one of the main topics of his January confirmation hearing as retiring Justice Sandra Day O'Connor's replacement. O'Connor has been a crucial swing vote on abortion, and Alito's opponents fear that he and recently confirmed Chief Justice John Roberts would swing the Supreme Court to the right and lead to the overturning of the 1973 landmark Roe v. Wade decision establishing abortion rights.

ORIENT EXPRESS: California Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger and first lady Maria Shriver are led through a crush of fans and photographers in Beijing on Monday. Schwarzenegger is on a six-day trade mission to the Far East, trying to tap into the burgeoning Chinese market by promoting California products. The trip also gives him a chance to revive his political image after the bruising defeat of his "year of reform" package in last week's special election.

THEATER | Lights-Out Performance A performance of Arthur Miller's "A View From the Bridge" was stopped Sunday in Mestre, Italy, after a spectator complained about an actor smoking, the Corriere della Sera newspaper reported. Sebastiano Lo Monaco, an actor in the play, was smoking, as the part calls for in the script, when an audience member shouted, "Put out that cigarette." Italy has banned smoking inside public places. The show was stopped for 15 minutes as the actors revised the script. (EXPRESS) EyeOpeners | Page 2

STIMULATION

Love Music? Now It Loves You Back

A new iPod accessory combines passion for music with passion for something else. The iBuzz vibrator connects with the digital music player and pulses to the beat of the music that is being played, the (London) Sun reported. The intensity of the vibration also increases as the volume of the music is turned up. Love Honey, the maker of the device, says the product is on the verge of being sold out. The combination of the music player and vibrator makes "the ultimate cheeky Christmas stocking filler," said Jessamy Hawley of the technology publication Gadget Candy. (EXPRESS)

LANGUAGE BARRIERS

Going for the Gold ... in Grammar

China is undertaking an effort to correct its English on Beijing's bilingual signs to save itself embarrassment when it hosts foreign competitors in the 2008 Olympics, Agence France Presse reported. The campaign, called "Use Accurate English to Welcome the Olympics," asks people to point out garbled English phrases and humorous mistakes.

For example, the "Park of Ethnic Minorities" is identified in English as "Racist Park," and emergency exits at the airport note "No entry on peacetime." Signs about wet road conditions warn, "The slippery are very crafty." (EXPRESS)

Bush: Iraq War Critics 'Irresponsible'

President says Dems 'playing politics' in fight over pre-war intel

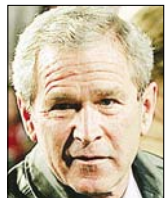

ELMENDORF AIR FORCE BASE, ALASKA | President Bush escalated the bitter debate over the Iraq war on Monday, hurling back at Democratic critics the worries they once expressed that Saddam Hussein was a grave threat to the world.

"They spoke the truth then and they're speaking politics now,"

Bush said.

Bush went on the attack after Democrats accused him of manipulating and withholding pre-war intelligence and misleading Americans about the rationale for war.

"Some Democrats who voted to authorize the use of force are now rewriting the past," Bush said.

Bush

"They're playing politics with this issue and they are sending mixed signals to our troops and the enemy. That is irresponsible."

The president spoke to cheering troops at this military base at a refueling stop for Air Force One on the first leg of an eight-day journey to Japan, South Korea, China and Mongolia. After a Latin American trip with meager results earlier this month, the administration kept expectations low for Asia.

Iraq and a host of other problems, from the bungled response to Hurricane Katrina to the indictment of a senior White House official in the CIA leak investigation, have taken a heavy toll on the president. Nearing the end of his fifth year in office, Bush has the lowest approval rating of his presidency and a majority of Americans say Bush is not honest and they disapprove of his handling of foreign policy and the war on terrorism. Heading for Asia, Bush hoped to improve his standing on the world stage. TERENCE HUNT (AP)

9/11 Panel Critical on Detainees

WASHINGTON | Reviewing action on recommendations it made last year, the Sept. 11 commission on Monday criticized the Bush administration for not adopting standards for treatment of captured terror suspects.

There was high praise for U.S. attempts to integrate the Arab and Muslim world into the global trading system and in fighting terrorism financing. But ex-commission chairman Thomas Kean, ex-vice chairman Lee Hamilton and the eight other members found much to criticize.

Their review gave the administration the grade "unfulfilled" on the commission's recommendation that the U.S. develop a common approach with friendly nations on the treatment of captured terror suspects. The commission also had suggested the Geneva Conventions on the law of armed conflict should be applied to military prisons and secret detention centers. (AP)

DeLay Seeks December Court Date

AUSTIN | An attorney for U.S. Rep. Tom DeLay said Monday that he will request an early December trial date for the former House majority leader, if the case gets that far.

Attorney Dick DeGuerin said in a letter that "time is of the essence" in the case that has temporarily forced DeLay to step down from his top House post. Judge Pat Priest has set a Nov. 22 hearing to consider the request.

Defense attorneys have asked that the charges be dropped for various reasons, including alleged misconduct by a prosecutor. (AP)

Law Could Allow Trials of Judges

PIERRE, S.D. | A movement is under way in South Dakota to turn the tables on members of the bench.

Activists are trying to put a measure on next year's ballot that could make South Dakota the first state to let people who believe their rights have been violated by judges put those judges on trial. Citizens could seek damages or criminal charges.

The measure would overturn more than a century of settled law in the United States by stripping judges of their absolute immunity from lawsuits over their judicial acts.

Legal experts warned that such a provision could run afoul of the U.S. Constitution. And they noted there are already remedies available to the public: Bad rulings can be overturned on appeal, and judges who break the rules can be punished by disciplinary boards and, in some states, voted out of office. (AP)

Supreme Court Passes On 'In God We Trust' Case

Leaders of a North Carolina county can keep "In God We Trust" on their government building, after challengers lost an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court on Monday. Justices did not comment in rejecting an appeal over the inscription on the Davidson County government building in Lexington, N.C. The action had been expected. (AP)

Dow Jones Fights Request By CIA Leak Prosecutor

The prosecutor in the CIA leak case has sparked another fight with the news media, this time over access to material prosecutors will turn over to defense lawyers for I. Lewis Libby. Special Counsel Patrick Fitzgerald is seeking a protective court order that would bar Libby and his legal team from publicly disclosing "all materials produced by the government." Dow Jones & Co., publisher of The Wall Street Journal, went to court Monday to fight the proposal, arguing the public has a right to be informed about the proceedings. (AP)

Woman Drives Station Wagon Into Bookstore

A woman drove a station wagon through a wall of the Barnes & Noble bookstore, sending glass, wood and books flying. Three people suffered leg injuries. Two were taken to a hospital. The store was filled with shoppers at about 2 p.m. Sunday when the Subaru station wagon plowed backward through picture windows in a reading area in the store's northwest corner. The driver, Linda A. Duck, 58, has not been charged. She was not injured. (AP)

CAPTURED: David Ludwig sits in a police vehicle after leading police on a high-speed pursuit — up to 95 mph — ending in a crash in Belleville, Ind., on Monday.

Teen Accused in Slaying Captured

David Ludwig allegedly abducted his girlfriend after killing her parents

BELLEVILLE, IND. | A Pennsylvania teenager suspected of killing his girlfriend's parents in an argument over her curfew was captured in Indiana on Monday with the girl in his car after a police chase that ended in a crash. The 14-year-old girl was not hurt, authorities said.

David Ludwig, 18, and Kara Beth Borden were taken into custody around midday after he crashed his parents' car head-on into a tree in Belleville, some 600 miles from where the killings took place.

Police were questioning Ludwig but had not spoken with Borden. Because of her age, Indiana and Pennsylvania law requires a relative, guardian or attorney to be present.

Investigators said it was not immediately clear whether the girl was abducted or went along willingly, but they were operating on the assumption she was kidnapped.

Authorities said Ludwig shot Kara's parents, Michael F. and Cathryn Lee Borden, early Sunday after they and their daughter argued about her curfew when she came home late. The shootings happened at the family's home near Lititz, Pa., about 60 miles west of Philadelphia.

Woman Charged After Marrying Boy

GAINESVILLE, GA. | A 37-year-old woman has been charged with child molestation for allegedly having a sexual relationship with a 15-year-old boy whom she married last week.

The Gainesville Times quoted unidentified members of the boy's family as saying that Lisa Lynnette Clark is pregnant with the boy's child and that they were married Tuesday.

The boy's grandmother, Judy Hayles, said she received an official notice of the marriage because she is the boy's guardian. She had filed a complaint against Clark on Oct. 6.

Clark was arrested Wednesday and remained in custody Monday. A preliminary hearing is set for Nov. 30. (AP)

Twin Suicide Bombings Rock Kabul

Attacks on NATO vehicles kill a German soldier, Afghan child

KABUL, AFGHANISTAN | Suicide bombers rammed cars filled with explosives into NATO peacekeepers in two attacks in the Afghan capital Monday, killing a German soldier and an Afghan child and wounding at least a dozen other people — the first major assault on foreign troops in Kabul in more than a year.

Troops thwarted a suspected third bombing by shooting dead three people in a car racing toward the scene of the blasts. Such seemingly coordinated attacks are unprecedented in Afghanistan, and reinforced fears that Taliban insurgents are copying tactics used in Iraq.

The bombings occurred within 90 minutes of each other on a 500-yard stretch of road near the headquarters of Afghan-U.N. election organizers. In each case, the attackers rammed their cars into NATO vehicles.

After the first attack, the body of the German soldier lay on the ground under a crumpled armored Mercedes military vehicle. Troops carried a wounded German soldier to an ambulance on a stretcher. Bits of a Toyota Corolla sedan that the attacker used were strewn across the road.

The blasts underscore the challenges facing the U.S.-backed president, Hamid Karzai, as he struggles to shore up his nation's fledgling democracy. The attacks came two days after officials released results from recent legislative elections, showing a win for Karzai's supporters. DANIEL COONEY (AP)

U.S., Iraqi Forces Open Fresh Border Offensive

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | U.S. and Iraqi troops launched a fresh attack Monday against an insurgent stronghold near the Syrian border despite calls by Sunni Arab leaders to halt such operations to encourage a big turnout in next month's election. The U.S. command said about 50 insurgents were killed.

Two U.S. Marines were killed and at least seven were wounded in the fighting in the border town of Obeidi, according to a New York Times reporter is embedded with the Marines. A Marine spokesman told The Associated Press that he cannot report casualties until 24 hours after they occur.

In Baghdad, a car bomb exploded near the main gate to the heavily guarded Green Zone, killing two South Africans and wounding three other people. The victims worked for State Department security contractor DynCorp International, the U.S. Embassy said.

Chirac: Riots Reveal Identity 'Crisis'

French leader says nation must work to combat discrimination

PARIS | President Jacques Chirac said Monday that the unrest in France's poor, largely nonwhite suburbs revealed a "crisis of identity" that the entire nation must heal with firmness and with measures that combat what he called the poison of discrimination.

Chirac — speaking to the nation for the first time since the unrest erupted Oct. 27 — said France must instill values and hope in the "sons and daughters of the Republic" growing up in the poor, largely immigrant suburbs ringing French cities.

French law must be obeyed, he said, but all of France — its companies, unions and the media — must work to change decades of discrimination with new hiring policies.

"These events testify to a profound malaise ... This is a crisis of direction, a crisis of reference points, it is a crisis of identity," he said.

IN RUINS: A woman walks past a school Monday that was damaged when rioters rammed a car into its gate and then set the building on fire in Toulouse, France.

Chirac spoke after the Cabinet moved to extend a state of emergency from 12 days to three months, with the possibility of ending the measure early. The parliament was to debate the bill Tuesday.

The magnitude of the unrest has stunned France. The country's leadership and many citizens learned the depth of discontent in France's suburban housing projects, home to many immigrants from North Africa and their French-born children disillusioned by discrimination and soaring unemployment.

Chirac said discrimination "drains the foundations of our Republic." But he appeared to rule out U.S.-style affirmative action.

Chirac said he decided to create a corps of volunteers to train 50,000 youths by 2007. He told companies and unions they must encourage diversity and support employment for youths from tough neighborhoods.

France's media also must "better reflect the reality of France today," Chirac said. ELAINE GANLEY (AP)

Mexico, Venezuela at odds after Chavez says 'Don't mess with me'

MEXICO CITY | Mexico and Venezuela announced Monday they will pull their ambassadors from one another's capitals amid a war of words, including demands that Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez's government apologize after he warned Mexican leader Vicente Fox: "Don't mess with me."

The severing of diplomatic relations came after a week of verbal sparring that highlighted Latin America's differences over free trade and U.S. relations.

Venezuela's president has repeatedly accused Fox of being a "puppy" of American interests and of disrespecting him after the pair took opposing positions during this month's Summit of the Americas.

On Sunday, Chavez used his weekly radio and TV show to warn Fox: "Don't mess with me, sir, because you'll get stung."

Venezuela called its ambassador home Monday rather than apologize for the remark, and Mexico responded by recalling its own envoy to Venezuela.

In an interview with CNN en Espanol, Fox said his government was mulling its next move. (AP)

Rice Presses Deal On Gaza Crossing

RAMALLAH, WEST BANK | Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice rearranged her travel schedule at the last minute Monday to try to win a deal on Israeli-Palestinian border issues.

Rice delayed her departure from the Middle East for Asia in hopes of announcing an agreement on technical issues regarding the opening of some crossings in the Gaza Strip.

Questions of security and authority at routes in and out of Gaza have stalled progress between the two sides since the Palestinians took nominal control of the sea-side territory bordering Israel two months ago.

While negotiations continued in Jerusalem, Rice also made a quick side trip to Jordan to offer condolences for those killed in terrorist hotel bombings last week. (AP)

Teen ID'd as Va. Cell Phone Bandit

Police say 19-year-old should be considered armed and dangerous

CHANTILLY, VA. | A woman suspected of robbing four banks in Northern Virginia while talking on a cell phone was identified Monday, and a warrant has been issued for her arrest, law enforcement agencies said.

Candice Rose Martinez, 19, of Chantilly, is considered armed and dangerous, said Kraig Troxell, a spokesman for the Loudoun County Sheriff's Office.

Tips about Martinez's identity were called into Crime Solvers after photographs of the robbery suspect were released last week. "We were flooded over the weekend," said Fairfax County Police spokeswoman Mary Mulrenan.

Martinez has been charged with robbing a Wachovia Bank branch in Fairfax County on Oct. 22 and another Wachovia branch in Loudoun County on Nov. 4. She is also a suspect in the robbery of a Wachovia branch in Vienna on Oct. 12 and one in Prince William County on Oct. 21 but has not been charged in those incidents.

In all four robberies, a female suspect approached a teller, displayed a note and demanded money — all the while talking on her cell phone.

The suspect displayed a gun during the most recent robbery, in Ashburn, Troxell said. (AP)

High Court Rebuffs Parents

Case involves special education challenge in Montgomery County

WASHINGTON | The Supreme Court ruled Monday that parents who demand better special education programs for their children have the burden of proof in the challenges. Retiring Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, writing for the 6-2 court, said that when parents challenge a program they have the burden in an administrative hearing of showing that the program is insufficient. If schools bring a complaint, the burden rests with them, O'Connor wrote.

Jerry Weast, superintendent of the Montgomery County school system, which was sued by the parents of student Brian Schaffer, said the decision was a "victory for special education teachers."

The ruling is a loss for the Schaffer family, which contested the special education program designed for their son with attention deficit hyperactivity disorder.

The case required the court to interpret the Individuals With Disabilities Education Act, which does not specifically say whether parents or schools have the burden of proof in disputes.

Charges Dropped Against Protester

FAIRFAX, VA. | Prosecutors dropped charges Monday against a George Mason University student and Air Force veteran who was arrested for protesting a military recruiter's visit to campus in September.

Fairfax County prosecutors did not explain why they dropped the trespassing and disorderly conduct charges against Tariq Khan, 27.

But GMU officials previously had said they did not want the county to pursue the charges. While Khan said he was pleased that the charges were dropped, he believes he is owed apologies from the university and its police force for arresting him without cause. He said school officials who have met with him "are acting like they are doing me a favor" by dropping their pursuit of the charges.

On the day of the arrest, Khan said he had been standing next to a recruiter's table, holding signs and passing out fliers, when some students verbally attacked him and tore up his signs.

When GMU police arrived, he said they turned against him and allowed the students to physically assault him during the arrest. (AP)

Voter Rule Axed by Board

ANNAPOLIS, MD. | A rule prohibiting paying workers who register voters was dropped by the state Board of Elections Monday, according to a voting advocacy group that sued over the rule.

The Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now, or ACORN, sued over the rule in September, saying paid workers should be allowed in registration drives. The group used paid workers in 2002 to register about 22,000 voters. In 2004, after the no-pay rule was adopted and the registration workers were all volunteers, ACORN's registrations dropped to about 100.

The advocacy group announced Monday that the state elections board and Montgomery County Board of Elections, which was also sued, dropped the rule. ACORN typically hires about 15 people at $8 to $9 an hour for registration drives, said Maryland ACORN spokeswoman Michelle Moore.

"In Maryland there are still a lot of low-income voters who are not registered to vote. In order to include everybody in the process, we need to be able to do large-scale registration drives," Moore said. (AP)

Wild game donations headed to Miss. city slammed by Katrina

HAGERSTOWN, MD. | Elk gumbo, anyone? It may be on the menu when more than 1½ tons of donated elk meat and venison from as far away as Arizona arrive this week in Biloxi, Miss. ## AOL to Offer TV Reruns on Web

In2TV network will offer classic hit shows via online video in '06

LOS ANGELES | Dozens of old television shows including "Welcome Back Kotter" will be available online and free-of-charge under a deal between America Online Inc. and Warner Bros.

In the latest alternative to traditional TV viewing, a new broadband network called In2TV will be launched in early 2006 by AOL and Warner Bros. Domestic Cable Distribution, the companies said Monday.

Besides the TV shows, In2TV will include games, polls and other interactive features.

"Welcome Back Kotter," "Sisters" and "Growing Pains" are among the 30 series to be offered initially as Internet streamcasts. In2TV plans to offer more than 100 TV series and at least 300 episodes per month in the first year, the companies said.

The shows will be delivered through AOL Video on Demand, AOL Video Search and AOL Television.

The shows will contain two minutes of advertising per half hour, streamed before and after the shows, and also at the traditional commercial breaks when the show aired on TV. Sponsorships and banners will also be sold, according to AOL. (AP)

REDSKINS | BY MATT SWENSON

The Redskins' Worst Enemy

IF THE REDSKINS could just get out of their own way, they'd be a really good team. Instead, Washington is 5-4 and in a season-long game of musical chairs for a coveted play-off spot.

Sure, the refs blew the call on Mike Alstott's two-point conversion that was the difference in the Buccaneers' 36-35 win on Sunday. But the game should never have gotten to that point.

Once again, the Redskins lost the turnover battle. That would be the seventh time in nine games they've done that. Maybe the Redskins feel their opponent each week isn't enough competition. And, truth be told, they might be right. Washington is losing games to itself at an alarmingly high rate.

Washington makes way too many mistakes every week.

The losses to the Broncos, Chiefs and Bucs can all be traced back to Redskins' turnovers. What's a fumble here, an interception there if the games are entertaining? And who needs defense either? The Redskins sure don't seem to be playing much of that anymore. How many times will Walt Harris be burned before rookie Carlos Rogers takes his spot?

For all this talk about how great the coaching staff is, Washington makes way too many mistakes every week. The team makes plenty of plays and is fun to watch, but that was true in the Norv Turner era as well. At this point, the word "genius" can be taken out of Gregg Williams' "mad genius" title.

The mistakes must end, or the Redskins won't have a seat when the music stops.

Upon Review, Gibbs Angry

Coach questions refs' calls on key plays in Redskins loss to Bucs

REDSKINS | Mike Alstott's game-winning 1-yard plunge has already been replayed more than an episode of "Bonanza" on TV Land, and the multiple viewings haven't changed Phillip Daniels' mind.

"He didn't get in," the Redskins defensive end said.

Ladell Betts also has seen replays of his 94-yard kickoff return. Understandably, he is less definitive when asked if he thought he stepped out of bounds. "It could go either way," Betts said.

Replays indicate that neither should have counted, but did because the evidence wasn't irrefutable.

Unless you ask coach Joe Gibbs, who was a video detective Monday. He was analyzing the borderline calls in Sunday's 36-35 loss to the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. He said he has a "very clear film shot" of Alstott coming 6 inches short on the 2-point conversion that gave the Bucs the win. He also said Betts' "cleats were down but his heel was up" and not touching the sidelines on the runback.

Furthermore, Gibbs disputed the penalty that moved the ball from the 2 to the 1 for Alstott's conversion. The Redskins blocked a point-after kick that would have tied the game but were called for offsides, giving the Bucs the extra yard and the incentive to go for the win.

All of which made Gibbs less than happy the day after another close game that dented the playoff hopes of the Redskins (5-4), who have lost four of six after a 3-0 start. The Hall of Fame coach is never shy when it comes to questioning officials, especially in a stretch in which eight of 13 games have been decided by three points or fewer.

"You'd like to say, 'Well, we don't want it to come down to that.' But to be quite truthful, up here it can come down to that," Gibbs said.

A-Rod Snags the AL MVP Over Ortiz

Balloting signals reward for Rodriguez's defense

BASEBALL | Alex Rodriguez showed slick fielding counts, winning his second American League Most Valuable Player award in three seasons by defeating David Ortiz in a vote that rewarded an all-around player over a designated hitter.

Rodriguez, the New York Yankees' third baseman, received 16 first-place votes, 11 seconds and one third for 331 points from the Baseball Writers' Association of America. Ortiz, the DH for the Boston Red Sox, got 11 firsts and 17 seconds for 307 points. Los Angeles Angels outfielder Vladimir Guerrero was third.

"I think defense, for the most part, being a balanced player and also saving a lot of runs on the defensive side, I think was a major factor here," Rodriguez said.

Rodriguez hit .321 with an AL-high 48 homers, 130 RBIs and 21 steals, breaking Joe DiMaggio's 68-year-old Yankees record for home runs by a right-handed hitter (46). A-Rod also won the award in 2003.

Ortiz batted .300 with 47 homers, a major league-leading 148 RBIs and one steal. RONALD BLUM (AP)

Wizards Get First Crack at Hughes

Arenas named player of the week ahead of game against ex-mate

WIZARDS | Gilbert Arenas admits that he "was hurt" when Larry Hughes left the team for the Cleveland Cavaliers during the offseason.

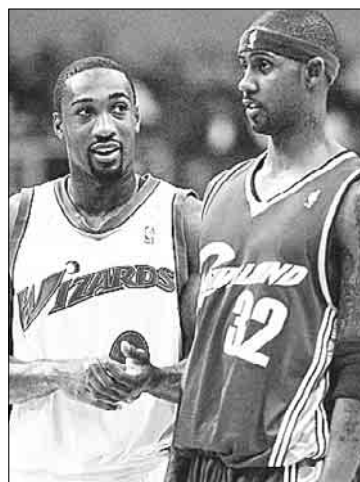

"That's the guy who was one of my better friends in this league. It was hard," said Arenas, who was named Eastern Conference Player of the Week on Monday.

One thing is for sure — the Wizards weren't too hurt. And having just crushed two West Conference teams, including the NBA champion Spurs, the Wizards view Tuesday's game against Hughes' new squad as a test of their ability to continue the routs on the road.

"We are winning basketball games. With that comes confidence," point guard Antonio Daniels said.

The loss of Larry Hughes (14.9 ppg, 4.3 rpg) presented a challenge to the organization — making up not only the production he gave them but the chemistry he had with Arenas and power forward Antawn Jamison. The answer was not to get one player, but many.

WIZARDS NOTES

PETER JOHN RAMOS was assigned to the Roanoke Dazzle of the NBA's D-League on Monday. Ramos, 20, was a second-round pick last year. The 7-foot-3 native of Puerto Rico averaged 1.8 points and 0.7 rebounds in his rookie season.

"We got people to fill in where he left off," said Arenas. "Those new guys, we all get along well."

The re-stocked roster has done more than simply fill in for Hughes. The team has surpassed its performance from last year. As of Sunday, Washington was third in the NBA in offense and sixth in the league in defense. And some players feel that, "we have not played our best basketball," Daniels said.

Presumably that doesn't refer to Arenas (28.5 ppg, 6 apg), who is the league's fourth-highest scorer. But it's not just the points that are making the Wizards such a tough team to beat, coach Eddie Jordan said.

"It's just about helping his teammates. We're just trying to incorporate everybody to get on the same page at both ends of the floor," he said. "And Gilbert's helping us do that. That's the kind of leadership we're looking for,"

USC, Texas On Course for Rose Bowl

COLLEGE FOOTBALL | Southern California and Texas were at the top of the Bowl Championship Series again Monday — and history says the only two unbeaten teams left in major college football are a great bet to play for a national title.

With two games remaining for each, the Trojans and Longhorns are four victories away from locking up spots in the Rose Bowl on Jan. 4 for a matchup that has appeared inevitable for months.

And it's been rare for teams in the position that USC and Texas are in to slip up this late in the season.

In the eight-year history of the BCS, 12 undefeated teams have held one of the top two spots in the standings with three weeks left in the regular season. Only one of those teams — UCLA in 1998 — didn't play in the BCS title game. RALPH RUSSO (AP)

Penalties Send Capitals to Cellar

Washington struggles to adapt to the NHL's new rules this season

CAPITALS | Heading into tonight's contest against the Stanley Cup champion Tampa Bay Lightning at MCI Center, the 6-11-0 Capitals have slipped back into last place in the NHL's Eastern Conference.

It's expected, but still frustrating, as the Caps have proved they can compete but continue to sabotage their efforts with continuous trips to the penalty box.

Washington's season-high three-game losing streak certainly has been influenced by goalie Olie Kolzig's groin injury, but can be more adequately explained by the Caps' lack of discipline.

They were shorthanded a combined 24 times over the past three games, yielding six goals. Those goals were the margin between a win — or at least overtime — and defeat in each contest.

Washington takes 20.5 penalty minutes per game (fifth in the NHL), wasting the team's impressive improvement at even strength and leaving its fortunes in the hands of the league's third-worst penalty kill.

The NHL instituted new rules and officiating directives this season to unclog and speed up the game, but the Caps seem to be having difficulty with the new standards.

"In the heat of battle, a lot of teams and veteran guys are trying to go back to the old rules," defender Jamie Heward said. "It's been tougher to get away from that old style. It's a learning process. And some refs are more lenient than others."

Indeed, most of the Capitals' penalty leaders are experienced players, led by right wing Chris Clark and defenseman Brendan Witt. But no one in Washington is listed among the league's 30 most penalized players. It's a team problem.

"It was easier the old way," captain Jeff Halpern said of defending in the new NHL. "Playing against the other team's top line, it's always easier when you can clutch and grab." BRIAN STRAUS

An Actor's Fine Line

Joaquin Phoenix worked to inhabit late legend Johnny Cash

BIG SHOES | When Joaquin Phoenix set out to become the Man in Black, the one easy step was the first one. He bought a guitar.

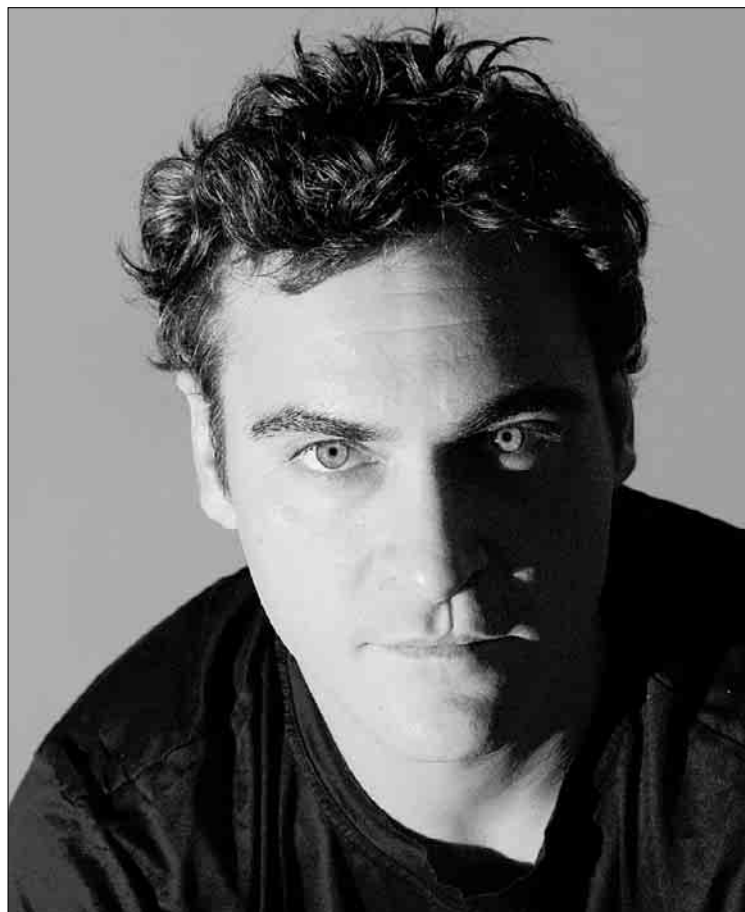

Phoenix, who plays country music giant Johnny Cash in "Walk the Line," plucked away on basic chords until he felt comfortable fingering his way along the frets.

Then he unlearned his generic picking style in favor of a country strum, a freight-train roll that Phoenix verbalizes as "doom, chicka doom, chicka doom ..."

Then he unlearned that so he could move on to duplicating Cash's more syncopated rhythms: "doom, chicka chicka doom, chicka chicka doom." The final hurdle: Putting the sound all together with Cash's unique way of looping his arm around the back of the guitar.

"It was real, real slow," Phoenix said. "It was like three kinds of phases of having to go back to stage one."

Phoenix also had to learn to sing with one of the most distinctive voices ever, the sonorous rumble behind such classic songs as "Folsom Prison Blues," "Ring of Fire" and "Ballad of a Teenage Queen."

CLOSE WATCH: Joaquin Phoenix worried that the producers of "Walk the Line" would dub his vocals, but the actor was finally allowed to do his own singing.

The result is a vibrant musical performance coupled with the most accessible dramatic delivery of Phoenix's career. With his reputation for brooding, laconic roles, Phoenix effortlessly embodies the dark corners of Cash, a man torn by childhood tragedy whose life nearly unraveled through addiction.

Yet Cash also was a joyful man, a lion among young lions in his early years touring with Elvis Presley, Roy Orbison, Jerry Lee Lewis and the love of his life, future wife June Carter, played by Reese Witherspoon.

Phoenix is concerned with keeping each moment onscreen fresh, and he won't watch the final cut of his films.

"You want it to be a unique feeling attributed to the scene as opposed to just making a face," he said. "That's the danger of it. If I could be objective and watch the film as a viewer does, then it would be great, but I honestly would be too self-obsessed."

Phoenix's main preoccupation was to get the music down. He trained with music producer T Bone Burnett, uncertain if his voice would have to be dubbed.

In the end, the filmmakers decided Phoenix had captured the essence of Cash's vocals and let the actor do his own singing. What does Phoenix think of his Cash imitation?

"I'm not John. I don't have that voice," Phoenix said. "It wasn't easy, but you just think, 'How is it that you can get there, and it sounds close and it's not distracting?'"

Big, Rich, Complacent

Country's golden duo haven't evolved much from their hit debut

MUSIC | The best thing about Big & Rich's 2004 debut album, "Horse of a Different Color," was the outsider attitude it brought to the country music mainstream.

They rode in on the skittails of Gretchen Wilson, their higher-profile pal in Nashville's so-called "Muzik Mafia," and they repeat that scenario with the arrival of their sophomore album "Comin' to Your City" (Warner Bros. Nashville).

The upstart attitude remains, but where Wilson has shown real growth as a writer and singer on her second album, "Big" Kenny Alphin and John Rich are stuck treading water.

The loopy opening track, "Freak Parade," is followed by the raucous title song, a start that promises more than the rest of the album can deliver. "Soul Shaker" and "Caught Up in the Moment" are garden-variety social-rebel chest-beaters.

They cast their lasso wide enough to rope in bits of hard rock, country funk and soul, but they work best when the calculated rowdiness settles down and they allow some human weakness and feeling in.

Mainstream country music can certainly benefit from a little attitude adjustment, but while maverick attitude is good, fresh content is better. RANDY LEWIS (LOS ANGELES TIMES)

Diamond Shines On

The arena showman takes a chance with a music maverick

THE YOUTH VOTE | Neil Diamond laughed when asked how it feels to be hip again, thanks to an album he has just finished with cutting-edge record producer Rick Rubin. "I'm a songwriter," Diamond said. "I'm not trying to be hip or non-hip. It's nice when a new generation starts paying attention, but there's nothing I can do about it."

Thanks to Rubin, the new "12 Songs" is the most rewarding album Diamond has released since "Beautiful Noise," the 1976 collection made with another respected rock producer, the Band's Robbie Robertson.

The highlights on "12 Songs" recapture the intimacy and charm of Diamond's '60s and '70s period, when he was turning out warm, spirited and catchy songs such as "Solitary Man," "Sweet Caroline" and "Song Sung Blue."

The best of the tunes, including the zesty "Delirious Love," should connect with his core audience in ways few of his songs have in two decades.

SPARKLE PLENTY: Crooner Neil Diamond returns to the gemlike pop songs of his '60s and '70s heyday with "12 Songs," produced by rock iconoclast Rick Rubin.

Despite his exuberance on stage, Diamond is shy and self-effacing. He avoids the music-business party circuit and rarely gives interviews.

"All the sparkly shirts and the stage trappings — that's just the performer, the public me," Diamond said. "Songwriting is the hardest and most personal thing I do."

Diamond, at 64 and a grandfather of four, can envision a day when he puts away the sparkly shirts and stops touring. But he can't picture not obsessing about his writing.

"I enjoy it as much as ever," he said. "The thing that surprises people is that it doesn't get easier with time because you are, in a sense, comparing every new song to what you've written before. You don't want the same sound or the same melody. You want to find something new." ROBERT HILBURN

An Unlikely 'House' Guest

Sela Ward takes a new role: humanizing a cranky TV doctor

GUEST STARS | Sela Ward has won two Emmys for playing heartfelt roles on relationship shows. So what's the star of the emotional family dramas "Sisters" and "Once and Again" doing on the cynical medical drama "House"?

She's guest-starring on seven episodes as Dr. Stacy Warner, who reveals a possible chink in the acerbic armor of Dr. Gregory House, a brilliant diagnostician with an appalling bedside manner.

"I think Stacy is like a window into him, his vulnerability, his heart, because he does have one somewhere," Ward said, discussing her appearance in nine episodes of the hit series (Tuesdays on Fox).

"I loved the challenge of doing something I had never done," said Ward. "I'd never done a medical show, a procedural show. ... There is not much time to really delve into the emotions. It's very quick-paced and clipped. It's not about sitting on a sofa and talking about how we're feeling."

Because "House" is a medical drama, focused on doctors trying to cure infectious diseases, Shore didn't want to take its lead character out of that environment.

So Warner was introduced last season as a now-married doctor who accepts a job at the hospital where her husband has come for treatment. Her presence disturbs feelings House thought he'd securely buried. BRIDGET BYRNE (AP)

AT THE MASTER'S FEET: What's better than Isaac Hayes as the voice of Shaft-like Chef on "South Park"? Arguably, Isaac Hayes as his bad self teaching Fez, via a rousing musical number, how to be Shaft-like on "That '70s Show." Hush your mouth!

Love, Hate and Marriage

It's a nice day for a white-trash wedding on 'My Name Is Earl'

THE BIG DAY | Tonight on "My Name Is Earl" (9 p.m., NBC), Joy makes it a point to exclude Earl from her wedding to Darnell.

In fact, her invitation to Earl's brother Randy specifically states that he can bring "anyone but Earl." And as if to rub salt in her ex-husband's wounds, she schedules her big day on his birthday and invites all of his friends, so he'll have no one to blow out the candles with.

As Joy, Jaime Pressly has outdone herself on this series, particularly when she gets to vent her character's petulant and vengeful side, which is often. Make that always.

But her emphatic exile of Earl from the proceedings may go too far, forcing our humble hero to acts that may have to be added to his karmic accounting ledger. KEVIN MCDONOUGH

Unclogging arteries is becoming an outpatient procedure

ADVANCES | It's not as routine as having your teeth cleaned, but a growing number of people are going to hospitals to get their heart arteries unclogged and going home the same day.

New research presented by Canadian researchers Sunday at an American Heart Association conference suggests a new approach to angioplasty makes it safe to send patients home the same day. Complications were no greater for those who went home a few hours afterward than for those who were hospitalized overnight.

Angioplasty is one of the most common medical techniques in the world. About 600,000 are done each year in the United States alone.

Through an artery in the leg near the groin, doctors snake a tube to blockages that are clogging vessels and preventing them from supplying enough blood to the heart. A tiny balloon is inflated to flatten the crud, and a mesh scaffold called a stent is left behind to prop the artery open.

To avoid bleeding from the leg incision, a common complication from the procedure, Canadian researchers led by Dr. Olivier Bertrand of Laval Hospital Research Center in Quebec did angioplasty a different way, using an artery in the arm near the wrist instead of one in the leg. MARILYNN MARCHIONE (AP)

BYPASS AND GOODBYE Researchers testing the need to keep patients overnight found few risks in an early release:

→ Half the patients in their study were given a single dose of anti-clotting medication and sent home 4 to 6 hours afterward. The other half got standard treatment: the single dose plus a 12-hour intravenous one given overnight in the hospital.

→ Six months later, the rates of major bleeding, heart attacks or need for repeat procedures to treat blockages were nearly identical in the two groups: 30 among the 504 patients given the single drug dose versus 28 in the other 501 patients.

A student learns to perform CPR on infants or children at a class in Alexandria, Va.

Learn CPR in 20 Minutes

EDUCATION | Too busy to take a four-hour CPR course? New research shows the lifesaving procedure can be effectively taught in a little more than 20 minutes.

The finding, presented Sunday at an American Heart Association meeting in Dallas, could broadly expand the number of Americans who can perform CPR. The study, led by Dr. Ahamed Idris of the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center in Dallas, found that just five minutes of training on defibrillator use and 20 minutes of instruction in CPR was as effective as the standard four-hour course.

The 150 people who took the short course did as well or better than the 118 who received standard training. Retention rates of knowledge remained similar six months later. (AP)

From sea to shining sea...

All across America at seaports, airports and land borders, the men and women in Homeland Security's Bureau of Customs and Border Protection are on the front lines keeping terrorists and terrorist weapons out of our country, while enforcing hundreds of U.S. laws.

They routinely apprehend dangerous wanted criminals, drug runners, smugglers and terrorists trying to enter the country.

They are responsible for seizing hundreds of thousands of pounds of drugs, keeping them off the streets of America.

They perform searches and seize contraband and other illegal goods.

They carry firearms and are proficient in their use.

These highly trained officers put their lives on the line every day, yet they do not have the one thing many other federal law enforcement officers have.

Law Enforcement Officer status.

Customs and Border Protection Officers deserve nothing less than full LEO status.

Healthy Adult VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

HIV is a global epidemic. Currently, 42 million people worldwide are living with HIV/AIDS, a disease that has no cure. In 2003, 5 million people were newly infected with HIV, equaling about 14,000 infections each day. Approximately 11 of every 1000 adults aged 15 to 49 worldwide, are HIV infected.

The world is in desperate need of a vaccine for the prevention of HIV infection.

Will you help?

Walter Reed Army Institute of Research and the Henry Jackson Foundation for the Advancement of Military Medicine are currently enrolling volunteers to participate in a study to evaluate the safety of a new investigational HIV vaccine.

If you are a healthy US citizen between the ages of 18-49, are not currently in the US military and are available for 12 months, you may be qualified to participate in a study evaluating this vaccine.

This experimental vaccine does not cause HIV infection.

Too many courses, too few players drive an industry to change

When Palm Desert Country Club opened in the early 1960s in Southern California, it promised carefree living along verdant fairways.

Today, the clubhouse is in disrepair, the grass is brown, and the course — one of 120 in the golf-loving Coachella Valley — is dismissed even by some who live along its fairways as a “dog track” and a “cow pasture.”

The current owner hopes to revive the club by spending $25 million to renovate the clubhouse, fashion new sand traps, lakes and a waterfall and squeeze in dozens of additional homes alongside its 27 fairways.

If the remodeling succeeds, Palm Desert Country Club could avoid the fate awaiting other troubled courses in an industry roiled by soaring real estate prices, lean corporate entertainment budgets and the sport's failure to attract and retain participants.

Operators are dangling discounts and promotions in front of customers — and courting a new generation of duffers who prefer T-shirts to polos. To survive, some courses are taking Palm Desert's approach: plowing under acreage to build homes that will finance improvements.

This isn't the scenario that golf's gurus envisioned in the 1990s, when the “Tiger Effect” — a surge in interest in the sport inspired by the arrival of Tiger Woods on the pro tour — fueled the belief that a course a day could be built for the foreseeable future. That euphoria extended into 2000, when 400 courses opened.

This year, about 150 will open, still far exceeding the 50 or so that will shut down.

The build-it-and-they-will-come mentality has been fueled by nationwide demand for high-end communities anchored by alluring courses. It comes after a heady half-century of growth; 3.5 million Americans played golf in 1950, compared with 27.3 million in 2004.

But the number of rounds played increased by just 0.7 percent in 2004 after three years of decline. The ranks of serious golfers — the roughly half of all players who account for the vast majority of rounds — fell by nearly 5 percent last year.

“We’ve gotten to the point where we could probably stand to close a course a day for the next 10 years,” said Walt Lankow, the owner of a family-run golf business outside Boston.

Golf also is wrestling with a booming real estate market that is tempting some course owners to sell to developers, even as it drives the market for new, generally upscale facilities in golf-centric regions.

The power of the real estate market is being felt at courses across the country. Half a dozen courses in Myrtle Beach, S.C., could close during the next few years to make room for housing. Development also is supplanting courses near Grand Rapids, Mich., and Raleigh, N.C.

Hotel Bombings

Post staff writer JACKIE SPINNER was online from Amman Monday to discuss the arrest of the female bomber and the recent attacks | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

Have there been female suicide bombers before?

She is definitely not the first female suicide bomber. We've seen them before in the Middle East and also in the Balkans. This seems to be the first husband-wife team. That is what is unusual.

What is the view in the mosques and on the street as to who perpetrated the crime? I read an article in the Post yesterday quoting an imam as stating that the attack must have been caused by Jews or Americans, because "Muslims don't do this to fellow Muslims."

I've been in Iraq collectively for more than a year. I can tell you that Muslims do commit crimes against Muslims. But I can also tell you that many, many people I talk to point out that Islam is not a violent religion and does not condone the taking of innocent lives. Jordan is a Muslim country, and we've seen on the streets the past few days the absolute outpouring of condemnation against these attacks. From my experience, personal and professional, Muslims are peaceful. You cannot equate extremism with being Muslim.

Have things calmed down in Amman? What is the mood on the street?

Amman feels pretty "normal" today. I'll tell you simply what I saw: I went to a shopping district this morning and it was packed and nothing seemed different. I went to the downtown, old market area, which tends to be more conservative, and sat in an open-air restaurant to have lunch with some friends. Nobody paid much attention to us and we were next to a table of Americans and a table of Europeans. I saw tanks on the streets and we couldn't drive up to our hotel without showing identification. The taxi driver also was inspected, not normal. But I felt completely safe.

Any reaction from the Abu Musab al-Zarqawi camp on this particular suicide bomber?

We only know that al-Zarqawi alerted us to her involvement in claiming responsibility for the attacks. Only the group said she had died. In fact, she had survived.

Letters

Supply & Demand for Seats

I AM APPALLED THAT METRO thinks removing seats from railcars will induce riders to be more considerate of other riders (the issue of folks who crowd around the doors). I have been a Metro rider since its inception and have never come in contact with a more thoughtless or rude bunch of people in my life. I think the extra standing room will only add to crowding, pushing and shoving to get off or on and total disregard for those who really do need a seat. Just one more example of Washington's wonderful me-first attitude. Thanks a lot, Metro, for nothing!

—E. WHITE
Hyattsville, Md.

Fewer Seats, More Misery

I HAVE TO SAY that despite the negative feedback to J. Field's letter (Nov. 7), I am very much in agreement. I am convinced that putting fewer seats on Metro trains will cause problems. People want to get in and find a seat and if there is no seat, they want to stand as close to the doors as possible. People in this city are rude. Not everyone mind you, but there are many. I have seen it time and time again.

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You're in the mood to say exactly what's on your mind at any given moment, but you must realize that there are accompanying dangers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You're not going to have to pretend, whether in public or private. Be yourself at all times, and let others react as they will.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A lively, enthusiastic approach will be appreciated by all. It's about time you put that negative attitude behind you!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) An increase in your daily income can be arranged, but you're going to have to give something before you can receive.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Even though you know what the outcome will be—or think you do—it is important that you follow the script and play things out completely.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Take care that your instructions to others are seen as suggestions, not orders. Overly aggressive behavior will be resisted.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may have to work on someone extra-hard before he or she is willing to lend support to one of your pet projects.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're in no mood for empty courtesies; when someone speaks to you, it had better be with real intentions and striking honesty.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your obsession with details and with fairness above all will serve you well. Not even the righteous Libra native can compete with you now!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may not be able to work or play closely with a good friend, simply because your internal rhythms are so wildly out of sync.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll be drawn toward a stranger who exhibits qualities you secretly admire. A partnership, if not a friendship, is certainly possible.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You're in no mood to reveal yourself to others; you want to be on the road, moving here and there freely, according to your own desires.
